THE IRRIGATION AREAS.

The admirable death of the late Commissioner for Water Conservation and Irrigation, Mr. L. A. Wade, confronts the Government with a heavy responsibility. Quite apart from the general importance of the position, an irrigation scheme which will increase other irrigation and conservation schemes, the Murrumbidgee area is an enterprise of such a magnitude as to make it an absolute necessity that the late Commissioner's position be speedily filled. The State has a heavy financial interest at stake in these areas, while the future of the present settlers and the settlement of the balance of the country depend mainly upon the Ministry's action in this regard. Although a grand start has been made at Yanco and Murrumbidgee, and we are confident that the irrigation areas will every promise of a prosperous future if it were administration is accompanied by determined personal effort on the part of the settlers, it has to be remembered that we have not yet turned the corner of the road to success or failure. In a sense the settlement is in its most momentous stage. Weak or inept management, lack of sympathy with the problems of the settlers, or even over-burdening of duties, can seriously affect the future of the enterprise, just as wise and efficient administration, broad based upon an active system, will mean a triumphal consummation.

The administration of the areas involves questions of such varied nature, demanding in each case specialized knowledge, that the Government might seriously consider the wisdom of extending the commission by appointing three members. The work entails engineering, agricultural, and commercial problems generally speaking, the engineer is the main factor in an irrigation scheme, although in this case it may be said that the agricultural and commercial problems of the enterprise now present the heaviest responsibilities, inasmuch as the other great work has passed the difficult pioneering stage. But in other directions there is a great deal to be done, and upon how it is done will largely depend the future of the enterprise. In the past the State was exceedingly fortunate in obtaining the services of one who, with the endless enthusiasm, even love, of a creator of a great national undertaking, simply gave himself to its service in a whole-hearted, strenuous manner that could be expected of few men. The late Commissioner also had the advantage of being associated with the life of the scheme from the day of its origin, and therefore had a grasp of detail that it is practically impossible could be possessed by any one man at this stage. As a result, Mr. Wade's work will endure, and at Leeton he has a noble monument. Yet it is no reflection upon the late Commissioner to say that, despite his vigilance and devotion, there are some details in the practical management of the areas which are not satisfactory. This could hardly be avoided while one man carried the engineering, agricultural development, and commercial organization practically upon his own shoulders. A great engineer is not necessarily also an agricultural expert, with the essential knowledge that fits him to place the true value of the capacity of his instrument in its service in a whole-hearted, strenuous manner that could be expected of few men. The larger the scheme grows the greater becomes this difficulty.

This point has to be remembered by the undulating, gently in the centre, with steeper grades at either side. It is ideal fruit-growing country, being well drained, having an eastern aspect, and the soil being generally black and rich sandy loam with a clay sub-soil, not too retentive of moisture. The rainfall is about 50 inches, although last year about 50 inches were recorded. If one takes the trouble to climb upon one of the little wooded spurs on the western side of the valley, the view is one which well repays the effort. Right across to the eastern side the landscape discloses how largely the wonderfully dense brush and bush have been broken into to provide orchard lands for new settlers or for extensions by the older growers.

Here and there is a patch of native brush still awaiting the axe or which is protected by a fence of its covering a watercourse or gully. Most of the orchards have good windbreaks. If the last main citrus crop is left of consideration, the present season has been a fairly good one for orchardists. The fine spring and summer rains have brought on a great crop of stone and nut fruits, but this was also the cause for losses by growers as many of the trees, especially proper time, and disease gets the upper hand. When the picking season comes along large quantities of good fruit fall to the ground, and money is also lost through the neglect of grading. Very often the larger the orchard the greater the waste of fruit, for where one area but a small amount of fruit under the trees in the small orchards, there are often large quantities in many of the big ones.

The Narara and Gosford districts generally lost heavily over the recent frost in the Sydney market, especially in the Carlingford apples. Nearly every orchard has a good many Carlingfords, which is a heavy bearer, and the bright red fruit is a first-class table apple when just ripe. Unfortunately, it is a bad carrier, and easily bruised, so that great quantities of it are lost. One grower, Mr. Gatos, who came from Narara five years ago to start as an orchardist, has a Carlingford planted since he came which has yielded nearly 80 bushels since the first of the season. This grower is doing well on 10 acres altogether, and his apple crop this year will reach 1000 cases. Most of the apple trees in the district have yielded heavily this year. Trivets have been of high quality. This apple is exceedingly popular, and it has exceptional keeping qualities, and would be a good exporter.

Albion's Early has also given profitable returns on account of it reaching a bare market in the middle of November as a consequence. Granary Smith is another of the best, and the success made of it both in the Narara and Gosford districts, and in the Carlingford district, is a convincing argument that this variety is a good marketable one for the district. It is a good marketable one for the district. It is a good marketable one for the district.

The timber industry is still a big thing for the district, and was back of the wheat. There are many miles of forest and brush. Consequently there is plenty of material for pulp, charcoal, and other products. The timber industry is still a big thing for the district, and was back of the wheat. There are many miles of forest and brush. Consequently there is plenty of material for pulp, charcoal, and other products.

So far, therefore, from being for increased supplies of fruit, mutton, and wool, one can only see in the future the national industry of Australia fighting against unfair and crushing odds. What the people of Australia are entitled to demand is a fair and equitable market for their products. The Government should be doing more to protect their interests.

RESTRICTING PRODUCTION. In the course of an interview, writes the Melbourne "Argus," Mr. Edmund Dwyer, who owns a large number of cattle in Queensland, said: "The main cause of the recent rise in the price of cattle has been the great scarcity of the meat supply, especially in Queensland, coupled with the gradually increased demands for beef throughout the world. It is of course, impossible to assert confidently that there is another element in price besides the supply. Beef may become cheap in Australia because of a large number of cattle being sent to the United States, but this is a possibility, and not a certainty. The Government should be doing more to protect their interests.

MR. ASHFORD IN THE WEST. GOVERNMENT'S ENDEAVOUR. DUBBO.—Mr. W. G. Ashford, Minister for Agriculture, in the course of an interview in Dubbo, said that the Government was doing more to protect their interests. The Government should be doing more to protect their interests.

THE NARARA VALLEY. EXPANSION IN FRUIT-GROWING. VIRTUE OF SMALL HOLDINGS. There are very few districts which have shown such remarkable expansion as that of Narara, near Gosford, during the last few years. On every hand one sees evidence of the efforts of settlers to plant out new country with fruit trees, and a large area is now being brought into bearing. The valley is very broad at Narara, the land being blow at those who have improved Crown lands, and made them capable of carrying cattle and sheep. The effects of this blow upon both the cattle and the sheep industry will be immediate and far-reaching, and unless the Federal tax upon Crown lands be withdrawn when Parliament convenes the effects will become increasingly disastrous to the whole community. It is to be borne in mind that these Crown lands, against which this tax is aimed, consist very largely of waste lands which have been taken up during the last 10 or 12 years at the expense of invitation by the Crown of lands which were on the point of being abandoned. During these last few years enormous sums of money have been spent in improving these waste lands in order to make them produce wool, mutton, and beef. According to the latest figures there were in 1912 538,322 acres held under lease and license from the Crown in Australia. But the important fact is that a still greater area, viz., 830,075,505 acres, was paying absolutely no rent at all to the Crown and producing no wealth to the community. Now it is evident that if there were in 1915 anything like the same area of land as in 1912, there must be an enormous area of the 860 million acres now paying rent which is an enormous area now paying rent which is an enormous area now paying rent.

FAIRFAX DRAWING COMPETITION.

ONE OF THE GROUP AWARDED FIRST PRIZE AT THE ROYAL ART SOCIETY'S EXHIBITION.

Government in deciding who is to carry on Mr. Wade's work, and in that regard the advisability of a commissioner possessing practical agricultural knowledge suggests itself as a wise step. There is a great deal to be done on the areas in the way of agricultural instruction and development, and it is a necessity that the expert staff should be efficient, energetic, and effective, or the desired result will not be obtained, and both the State and the settler will suffer in consequence. Without a commissioner possessing the qualifications referred to, it is difficult to ensure satisfaction in the above directions. Similarly, the commercial and financial side of the undertaking is of primary importance, and the same argument applies as from the agricultural standpoint. Yet the general practice, founded on sound experience, is to vest the control of great enterprises in the hands of engineers. The difficulty in appointing three commissioners to do these divisions in the administration is that there is an objection to the undertaking of a single man to carry out the duties of three different positions. On the other hand, if the chairman holds combining power, then the position practically resolves itself into a single command. Whatever is determined, however, it is necessary that the management be strong from an agricultural and commercial standpoint.

peaches and apples, dropped their crops. Although the district has been a large contributor to the apple and peach markets for many years, and these fruits are still grown to a great extent, most of the new growths broken in being devoted to citrus fruits. The soil and climate of the district is marked out as essentially a citrus centre—a fact that is demonstrated by the healthy trees one sees there. The last crop was, unfortunately, a failure, and the trees are now bearing a second crop, which, in many cases, is heavy enough to interfere with the next main crop. On some orchards peach trees are planted between the rows of citrus trees, so that a few crops of this fruit may be obtained before the oranges are in bearing. This may pay growers, but it certainly results in the loss of the main crop of citrus. The hillsides have generally been favoured for citrus culture, although the trees flourish on the black, sandy soil of the flats, the fruits being not so heavy as those on the slopes. One small orchardist, with about five acres, has a very fine crop of citrus, and has done very well, having, in fact, a very fine crop of citrus. Tailoring for Cash Saves You a Guinea!

—and gives you a 63/ suit for 42/, or a 70/ suit for 50/. That's the story in a very few words, but it is fifty per cent. stronger in argumentative force when you know all the details as to how it is done.

Years ago, I was a small struggling tailor, giving credit to every Tom, Dick, and Harry, losing a great deal of money every year through bad debts, and paying out huge salaries to travellers, bookkeepers, clerks, and collectors. It was a heart-breaking job to make both ends meet. And thousands of tailors are still doing the same thing to-day!

One day I determined to change over to a purely cash trade. I cut out the travellers and my staff of clerks, bookkeepers, etc., and informed my customers that my ledgers were scrapped, that all my unnecessary expenses were absolutely eliminated, and that I would GIVE THEM THE SAVING if they continued doing business with me. I lost only nine customers; men who had made up their minds that they couldn't pay cash even to save a guinea on their suits.

From that day my business has gone ahead with stupendous bounds. Every penny of unnecessary expense in the conduct of my business has been eliminated, and the saving goes back to my customers.

The materials are vastly superior to those that are usually sold at 63/ and 70/ the suit, because I saved 2/ a yard on the price by buying when the English market fell with a crash just after the war started. It was then that Lord Kitchener warned the Empire that the war might last for three years, and I knew that men would be forced to economise. That decided me to cable home for £5000 worth of woollens to sell at 42/ and 50/.

You don't subscribe one single, solitary penny to the upkeep of travellers. book-

HARD FIGHTING.

EAST AND WEST.

TURKISH DEFEAT.

Rearguard Annihilated.

The Allies have made further slight progress on the Belgian coast, near Nieuport, also on the southern wing in Lorraine.

The enemy officially claims that in four weeks, since General Joffre gave the general order to attack, the French losses have been over 150,000 killed, wounded, and prisoners.

The Germans claim that their losses in that period have been only a quarter of that number.

In Poland the Russians report progress on the lower Vistula.

Russian troops in Bukovina stormed a pass in the Carpathians, on the Transylvanian border.

The battle of Karangan ended in a complete Russian victory, the Turkish rearguard being annihilated.

It is stated that the army which has been ordered to invade Egypt is exceedingly badly equipped.

RUSSIAN CAMPAIGN.

STRUGGLE IN POLAND.

SEVERE ATTACKS REPULSED.

PETROGRAD, Jan. 18.

A communique states: Successful progress continues on the lower Vistula. Six German regiments were repulsed by exceptionally heavy artillery fire.

As a result of seven attacks and desperate bayonet fighting, the Germans captured a single advanced trench.

The Germans at Konopina, on the evening of the 15th, sapped within 20 paces of our entrenchments, but were overwhelmed by our machine-gun fire.

A number of Russian volunteers, taking advantage of the confusion, threw grenades into the enemy's communication trenches, forcing the Germans to retreat.

Three attacks south of Pincov were repulsed.

Our advance guards in Bukovina have stormed the Kribitz Pass, in the Carpathians, bordering Transylvania.

TURKISH DEFEAT.

REARGUARD ANNIHILATED.

PETROGRAD, Jan. 18.

A communique says the battle of Karangan (south-west of Karakoram) for the last three days was waged in the most desperate manner. It ended in a complete Russian victory, the Turkish rearguard being annihilated.

The remnants of the army, harried on flanks and front, are fleeing to Erzerum, the pursuers hiding in ravines.

Parts of the Turkish guns which the enemy was unable to carry were flung from the heights. The pursuit is being pressed.

TO INVADE EGYPT.

ILL-EQUIPPED ARMY.

CAIRO, Jan. 18.

The Press Bureau, in a communique based on statements of refugees, describes the army that is to invade Egypt as likely to display bravery but incapacity. Many of the troops are starving owing to lack of organization rather than lack of supplies.

They have insufficient horses and camels, their camels are dying of scab. The troops are ill clothed in torn uniforms of summer khaki.

German officers reported to Berlin that they were unable to advise an attack on Egypt with such troops, and suggested a postponement. The Germans, however, were ordered to march, though one officer admitted as much to certain deserters.

Refugees with the Turkish forces between Turkey and German officers in bid. The latter fear that if they do not succeed in crossing the canal the Turks will attack them.

GERMAN EAST AFRICA.

BRITISH REPULSE CLAIMED.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 17.

The Governor of German East Africa has reported that two British warships and twelve transports on November 2 demanded the unconditional surrender of Tanganyika, and landed in the vicinity of European and four Indian regiments, totalling 8000 men.

The defenders numbered 2000. After a battle lasting three days the British were repulsed with severe losses, and retreated northwards.

EARL KITCHENER.

REASON OF APPOINTMENT.

The "Daily Chronicle," relating attacks on Viscount Haldane (Lord High Chancellor), states that on August 2 Lord Haldane was assisting Mr. Asquith in the War Office.

The committee of the Labour party recommended the Government to take possession of all wheat, paying 35s to 40s per quarter, and sell it at the market price. If there is a surplus, they could pay the owners a bounty of 5 per cent. and use the balance for State revenue.

ENGLISH FOOD PRICES.

LABOUR RECOMMENDATIONS.

The newspapers are giving prominence to the rise in the price of food. The Board of Trade estimate is that prices in big towns are 19 per cent. above July prices.

PROGRESS ON COAST.

OFFICIAL COMMUNIQUE.

PARIS, Jan. 17.

A communique states: We progressed 200 metres in the Lombard district (on the coast north of Nieuport).

Despite the storm, we advanced in the Bea-Sejour district.

We continue to progress westward of Orbec (in Lorraine).

FRENCH OFFENSIVE.

ENEMY'S ESTIMATE OF COST.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 18.

A communique issued in Berlin states that during the four weeks since General Joffre published his general order for attack the French have lost 200,000 dead, 17,000 prisoners, and 107,000 wounded, exclusive of sick, without having gained substantial advantage.

The Germans did not lose one-fourth that number in the same period.

STORY OF SOISSONS.

GERMANS DESCRIBE SUCCESS.

The German account of the Soissons action says General von Lochow was the commander. Prior to the battle the opposing trenches were near each other on the top of a wooded height overlooking Crouy (north-east of Soissons), and the combatants were also entangled in quarries forming the western spur of the Vregny Plateau.

The French artillery was well posted at the edge of the plateau, and officers sitting in trees behind armoured platoons directed the French fire. The worst execution was done on Christmas Day. Some German machine-guns were hurled by the bombardment of the trenches on the 7th of January. The French then charged, and occupied the trenches.

Heavy fighting, man against man, continued day and night until the 11th, the Turkish fighting heavily with rifle, bayonet, and knife.

The Germans on the 12th, instead of attacking the wooded heights, stormed the observation posts. The French were immediately slackened, and trenches were captured. The French occupied fresh positions half way down, and apparently expected further attacks from the German right. The French brought strong reinforcements by rail and in motor cars.

The Germans on the 13th, however, attacked Vregny, completely surprising the French. The attack commenced at noon. The first line of trenches was taken in three minutes, and the next ten minutes later. The whole plateau was captured late in the afternoon.

The position of the French advancing against the German right was now desperate, and they surrendered on the 14th. The Germans were driven back from two to four kilometres upon a front of fifteen kilometres.

The Emperor was on the battlefield, and decorated von Lochow with the Order of Merit.

TROPICAL FORCE.

LA BASSEE.

REPORTED BRITISH SUCCESS.

LONDON, Jan. 18.

The "Times" explains that the British success at La Bassee (15 miles south-west of Lille) is unconfirmed. The mud is rendering the trenches a quagmire. A heavy artillery battle is proceeding.

The Paris "Matin" says a message from St. Omer states that owing to the position being untenable under the Allies' heavy artillery the Germans abandoned La Bassee.

INDIAN ENTHUSIASM.

RECRUITING BOOM.

DELHI, Jan. 18.

The tribute paid to the Commander-in-Chief in the Viceroy's speech on January 12 was well merited. All military departments continue to do splendid work. Applications by Indian army reserve officers for service with Indian regiments continue to be received in large numbers.

Recruiting for the Indian army continues in a remarkable manner, the fighting men, having had their appetites whetted by the stories of killing successes at the front, Indian wounded who have returned speak enthusiastically of the kindness and attention shown them in Europe. The volunteering movement has received a big fillip throughout the country. Various useful gifts for combatants and sick are being received daily.

SOISSONS.

TROOPS STIRRING NARRATIVES.

GALLANT FRENCH DEFENCE.

PARIS, Jan. 18.

The wounded French troops relate stirring narratives regarding the battle at Soissons.

They state that 10,000 Frenchmen were engaged fighting 40,000 Germans. The bridges at Misy and Veniel were swept away; but the Twelfth Engineers, although subjected to long-range artillery fire, worked day and night, several of the men being drowned, and the bridge at Misy was repaired by dawn on January 14.

When the general force retired the Germans attacked in close formation, two battalions being annihilated by the bridgehead defenders, who were sheltered behind a wall at the glassworks.

Some Germans seized the rifle protruding from the loopholes, and the French fired at them almost their last cartridge, forcing the Germans to fall back, and enabling the French rearguard to retreat.

Four guns remained on the northern bank of the river when the last shot was fired. A wounded officer ordered the guns to be dragged to the edge and flung into the mud.

Six runners ran across the bridge, and escaped.

MINING.

STOCKS FREELY QUOTED.

GOLD SHARES IN REQUEST.

BUSINESS ON BLACK LINES.

Judging by the unusually large number of stocks quoted at both the morning and noon yesterday one might be led to the conclusion that the stock exchange was displaying an untroubled degree of activity. But a careful analysis of the position of affairs showed that was not the case. True, the number of stocks quoted was unusually large, but the case of gold propositions the call for gold scrip was as bright as a new El Dorado had suddenly been discovered, and an analysis of the quotations gave one the impression that they were largely formal in character.

In proof of the twofold fact that the Tongkah Harbour in dredging operations, but a has-been, that the need of the harbour call the mining value, and that when the week's record in a poor one, it is not mean that the mine has done its dash, the past week's output was 25 tons of tin ore, as against 10 tons for the preceding week. This clearly shows that the bottom of Tongkah Harbour is far from being worked out.

Of course, the increased output may be largely due to the fact that an additional dredge may have been at work. Unfortunately, we are not told in the weekly report, but it is shown that the bottom of Tongkah Harbour is far from being worked out.

However, the effect of last week's increased output of the Tongkah Harbour plot, coming on top of the increased output of the local demand for tin stocks, especially those in the east, Tongkah Harbour, was not a favourable one. It was a good effect upon the local demand for tin stocks, especially those in the east, Tongkah Harbour, was not a favourable one.

The copper division still shows a lack of strength, and the increased output of the local demand for tin stocks, especially those in the east, Tongkah Harbour, was not a favourable one.

GENERAL SULTRY CONDITIONS.

Heat wave conditions exist over the greater part of the continent, and consequently, the extreme north coast, where Murrumbidgee had 130 degrees, Ballina 108, Lismore 82, and Newcastle 78. The heat appears to be concentrated between the centre of the continent and the western districts of New South Wales.

At Adelaide on Sunday the temperature was 104 degrees, at Melbourne 101, Perth 86, Sydney 81, and at Brisbane 77. Further east, a temporary southerly change on the South Coast, and a few scattered thunderstorms.

At Sydney on Sunday the temperature was 104 degrees, at Melbourne 101, Perth 86, Sydney 81, and at Brisbane 77. Further east, a temporary southerly change on the South Coast, and a few scattered thunderstorms.
